Evidently Intend to Strike to West of Meuse

Infantry Quiet--French Airmen Are Busy.

After temporarily assuming the aggressive in the Verdun battle, launching attacks in the Douaumont-Vaux region, which are declared to have gained them some ground, the French yesterday and last night held their infantry in check. Neither was there any move by the German infantry arm, according to this afternoon's Paris

Apparently a new movement of some importance is preparing to the west of the Meuse. Heavy bombardment of the French positions in the Avocourt region, and along the line for some distance ortheast, including the Dead Man's HII sector, has been mentioned in several recent official statements by the French War Office, and similar artillery activity is again recorded to-day.

It is said that Britain has now 500,000 men at the front. Surely the sreat drive must be nearly here at last. These men would soon eat their heads off if they were only being held for future use. We cannot believe that the Allies will long rest content to remain on the defensive.

content to remain on the defensive.

Sir Sam Hughes arrived at Ottawa youterday afternoon, and met with quite a reception from his friends. About fifteen hundred people met him at the station, and the Governor-General's Footguards band played welcoming muelc. Sir Sam was in fine fettle, was ready to muet his enemies, and laughed to scorn all the charges and laughed to scorn all the charges inade against him. He proposed to make a short statement to the House Comprove. He forgot to bring Col. John Wesley Allston along with him.

The Pinancial Post of Canada favors registration with a view to general service. It says that most men know of other men that can give no satisfactory reason for not being in khaki at the present time. A common-sense system is needed for registering or testing these possibles. Men who ought to go are not going and men who are the most willing to take up arms on behalf of their country. Something should be done to conserve the producers and or Canada because on that being done the success of the war depends as much as upon numbers of men under arms.

Evidently the German spy stories about the treatment of Americans in Canada during this war have had little effect. The natural resources department of the C. P. R. reports considerable sales of land and movements of actients from the American side into Canada. This movement has not been interrupted by the war, nor has it been settloosly affected as to numbers. The more the Americans know of the west, the better they like it, the C. P. R. states. They get as good land at they sell or ront, at half the price and less; they are able to save money, and many of them have done so on a considerable scale. The C. P. R. propagnada goes on all the time; it increases the population, and the brings in wealth, in money and stock and American enterprise.
